Who Am I?

Inspired by the Daisy Animal Observer badge.

How much do you know about your favorite animals? Play this fun guessing game to find out! First, cut apart the images below to make nine cards. Let everyone choose a card and take turns acting like their animal. What noises does the animal make? How does it move? Can everyone guess the animal? Show off your skills!

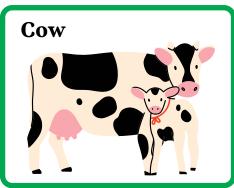

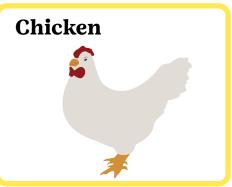

Congrats! You've completed the first step towards earning your Animal Observer badge.

Draw an Animal Home

Inspired by the Junior Animal Habitats badge.

An animal's habitat is its home. Habitats can be very different—think of the difference between a coral reef and a desert, for example, or a rainforest and the North Pole. In their habitats, animals have things like food, shelter, and space to help them survive.

Coral Reef

Desert

Polar

Tropical Rainforest

What is your favorite animal? What is its habitat like? Does it live in a tree, underwater, or somewhere else? What plants and other animals live in the same area? Draw your animal on this page and give it a great home. If you prefer, make a model with materials such as cardboard, string, paper, or anything else.

Congrats! You've completed the first step towards earning your Animal Habitats badge.

In this section, you'll get to hear and see stories from some pretty inspiring local Girl Scouts who are bridging to the next level, earning Highest Awards, going on trips, and more.

Troop 8246 Brownie Summit

Brownie Troop 8246 from Fond du Lac recently earned their Brownie Journey Summit Pin! The Journey Summit Award Pin is earned by girls who have completed three National Leadership Journeys. This is the highest award a Girl Scout Brownie can earn.

As the Take Action project to one of their Journeys, the troop built and installed a sled shed at a local sledding hill. After noticing that sleds are often forgotten and left all over the property, these Girl Scouts wanted to make a storage shed. First the troop had to meet with the town board to get permission. Next, they designed, constructed, and painted the sled shed. After finishing it, the troop installed it at the local sledding hill, and even donated 12 sleds!

Their final Journey on their Summit quest was the WOW! Wonders of Water Journey. They learned about the world of water, its importance, and how it is used around the world. They completed a Take Action project by creating informative posters about saving water. They even created a save water pledge that they not only took themselves, but also encouraged family and friends to take as well.

Way to go Girl Scouts! We can't wait to see what you do next!

mint to make impact

Girl Scout Pride

Daisy Troops 8578 and 8342, and Brownie Troop 8189 had a joint meeting to celebrate the Girl Scout Birthday in March! They enjoyed spending time together, having cake, playing Girl Scout trivia and other games, and trading SWAPs.

Raising Awesome Girls

Raising girls to be happy, healthy, and successful is simpler than ever with help from Girl Scouts. We're proud to stand with parents as they raise up the next generation of girls and young women. We've got everything you need to raise girls with confidence.

7 Ways Summer Camp Brings Out Her Best

Summer is when some of the most fun childhood memories are made, but did you know that it's also an awesome opportunity for your girl to grow, learn, and become her best self? Here are seven amazing benefits your girl will get from her summer camp experience.

1. She'll Make New Friends. There's nothing quite like giggling over games in the bunk or singing songs with new besties around a campfire. That's why it's actually good to send her to camp where she might not know many (or any) other girls! Having a diverse group of friends, not just kids she knows from school, will broaden her horizons and help her see her own worth, too.

2. She'll be all she can be. In an all-girl environment like Girl Scout summer camp, girls are more comfortable trying new outdoor activities, and they get to take the lead every single time — meaning there's plenty of room at the top for your girl to take charge and flex her muscle, both when it comes to outdoor adventure and crucial leadership skills that will last her a lifetime.

3. She'll turn off her phone and tune into nature. Getting out in nature, soaking up the sun, or dashing inside during a sudden downpour is way more exciting than any app she might have on her phone and is all part of the adventure of camp. Unplugging for a while will keep her more present and truly enjoying every moment instead of simply watching it from a screen.

4. She'll grow her grit. The truth is, she might scrape a knee or elbow while she's away — and that's a good thing! When she learns to get back up after minor setbacks, like scrapes and bumps, she's building her resilience and learning that she's a lot tougher than she thinks.

5. She'll meet new mentors. Having a variety of awesome role models will help your girl see the many ways to be successful and happy in life. And the incredibly supportive staff and counselors at your girl's summer camp are ready to step up to the plate and inspire!

6. She'll gain independence. Being away from home — especially if that's a new thing for her! — might be a bit intimidating to both your daughter and you. But having that time away to explore and try activities on her own will make her more self-reliant and able to discover new things to share and teach you when she returns home.

7. She'll have tons of time for play. Playtime is anything but a waste of time. In fact, studies show that play allows the neurons in a child's brain to form new connections — and that this rewiring helps boost emotional intelligence, decision-making skills, creativity, and problem-solving abilities.

The truth is, sending your girl off to camp is one of the best gifts you can give her. The fun, outdoor adventure, and friends will enrich her life and — perhaps without her even noticing — give her the courage, people skills, and leadership chops to succeed at whatever she sets her mind to.

A Worldwide Sisterhood

In this section, you'll hear from some pretty incredible Girl Scout alums and discover how Girl Scouts changed their lives. You'll see all that you can be and achieve, and maybe even get ideas and inspiration for your own future.

Pivoting in the Face of Change

Girl Scout alum and travel industry veteran Michelle Fee, the CEO of Cruise Planners, has had a career she never could have imagined in her 20s. The travel industry in the early 80s when she began working was a very different place than it is today.

"Forty-two years ago, there was no internet, and people had to walk into the agency in order to get airline tickets and vacation information. It was a whole different world," she explains of growing her first business, Friendship Travel, in the early days.

"Then, in 1994, we realized we were starting to become a dinosaur. Over the next couple of years, we realized the internet was going to take over a big part of our business and we needed to reinvent ourselves," Michelle says. "So, we changed our business into a home-based travel agency, before people even had computers in their homes."

It was then, in 1994, that Michelle launched Cruise Planners with two fellow industry veterans, who have since retired.

"At the beginning," she adds, "We weren't business savvy enough to think this big. But we got up every day and just tried to figure out how to grow our business. We were a little company back then, and I didn't envision what we would become today. I thought if we had 100 agents that would be success!"

Today, Cruise Planners is the largest home-based travel-franchise company in the nation, with more than 2,500 franchise owners and locations in all 50 states.

"People thought at the time that travel agents would eventually go away but we're just doing business differently. There used to be a travel agency in every strip center, but you'd be hard-pressed to find one now."

While switching to a business with a different model was a big pivot, Michelle says she makes smaller pivots regularly.

"Not everything works —you make some right decisions and some wrong decisions. You can't run a business thinking every decision you make is going to be right," she says. "But failures help you grow."

GO, GIRL, GO!

STEM Spot: DIY Mini Greenhouses

Greenhouses can be a helpful place to grow young green plants as part of a backyard garden or farm. The right amount of water, sunlight, and temperature means people can grow young or out-of-season plants even when it is excessively cold.

Source: Little Bins Little Hands.

Materials Needed:

- Clear 2-Liter recycled plastic bottles
- X-acto knife or sharp scissors
- Plastic wrap
- Rubber band

- Soil
- Seeds
- Spray bottle with water
- Plastic tray (optional)

Follow These Steps:

- 1. Remove the label and clean your plastic bottle!
- 2. Using the x-acto knife or sharp scissors (have adult supervision or help!), discard the middle part of the plastic bottle. Cut a few drain holes using a knife on the bottom of the bottle. You'll want the top half of the bottle to fit just enough into the bottom portion to create the greenhouse.
- 3. Fill the bottom portion of the bottle with soil. Poke 1 to 3 holes into the soil for the seeds. Place a seed in each hole and cover. Use the spray bottle to moisten the soil enough with water.

the greenhouse.

5. Set the mini greenhouse near a window sill with good sunshine. Use a tray underneath if desired.

6. Observe for a few days! Start a seed diary, record daily observations, and draw pictures of what you see. After a few days, you may see the seeds germinating. You may also be able to see the roots as they grow. Once your seedlings get big enough, you can transfer them to a bigger pot or garden outside.

How Does a Greenhouse Work?

A greenhouse works by having many clear walls allowing sunlight to enter and warm up the air inside. The air can stay warmer for longer than it would outside the greenhouse, even as the outside air cools down at night.

Building a mini greenhouse from a plastic bottle works in much the same way. The covering on the top of the bottle keeps the warm air from escaping even if the temperature around the bottle cools.

Condensation forms inside the bottle due to the warm air and moist conditions. The drops of water that form on the plastic will water the plant so that it will grow!
